'Excellent': 18 votes

- The naturalistic performance of the two young leads was truly amazing.
- Very moving and sympathetic towards the young orphan, amazingly acted by Laia Artigas. Lovely structure, setting her in the idyllic rural background where she was clearly very disturbed and it's only when her stepparents decide to be warmer and more loving & caring that she can sob her heart out.
Thank you Film Club!
- A very moving film. The acting by the little girl was wonderful.
- So many emotions but not mawkish. Exceedingly well played by the 2 children. Very touching and enjoyable film, thank you!
- Perfect performances
- Wonderful acting of the young children. Life affirming about family love.
- An enchanting and quietly captivating study of family life, the director teasing extraordinarily naturalistic performances from the two young girls; brilliant!
- An absorbing study of childhood innocence & grief!
- A brave film to make. Beautifully portrayed by everyone – unsentimental but believable
- Innocence in a Spanish paradise. Cuckoo in the nest? Finally life affirming when the dam of grief was finally released.
- A wonderful & uplifting film
