'Excellent': 4 votes

- Brilliant – The cinematography of Jack Cardiff was literally 'out of this world'! Stood the test of time, despite the stagey performances of some.
- Beautifully shot in wonderful Technicolor. A real treat from a great film maker.
- But sound very loud.

'Very Good': 4 votes

- A great film – so good to see it on a big screen, restored. So appropriate for Valentine's Day!
- Good that this was shown of Valentine's Day. Nail biting stuff held one's attention throughout. Good morale booster for the future after WWII
- An extraordinary achievement for its time; highly imaginative!
- A novel idea. I was interested to hear the prosecution and defence. David Niven was a good choice for the part – lovely eyes.

'Good': 2 votes

- A bit too saccharine for my taste.
- Entertaining but dated in terms of acting style.
