'Excellent': 13 votes

- Touching, funny, great soundtrack, great performances. McArdle, in particular, is superb
- A lovely mix of all emotions – Dignity & Pride enhanced with sensitive humour.
- Such a good film – very funny, very close to the bone for many of Ireland. A fascinating study of the themes it dealt with.
- A compelling, watchable story, held together by the lonely 'mums'. The 'editing' was superb – great film making!
- Entertaining
- Well drawn characters. Naturally funny
- Brilliant. Very funny. Good parts for older women.
- The Irish gay scene revealed in all its complexity. Brilliantly crafted

'Very Good': 7 votes

- The return of The Golden Girls. Fionnula Flanagan stole the show, even with no lines to say.
- Wacky, wonderful + totally human – not looking forward to a sequel!
- Charming, poignant and very funny with lead characters all delivering convincing and compelling performances.
- Such a poignant film – more touching than humorous
- A lot of interesting ways into conversation about Irish Gay Culture, in a very heart-warming setting.
